

Dear Rabbi,

I know this is long overdue, but thank you very much for being there for me when I was depressed. I realized there were some things missing in my life when I was down, and one of those things was religion. You were certainly at the center of my religious practices in Salt Lake City. I really appreciated how much you welcomed me to your house and your congregation.

I am feeling much better now since I have been home for a month. I have decided that it will be in my best interest and health for me to stay closer to home and go to the University of Nebraska. The next time I am in Salt Lake, however, I will be sure to visit you.

Sincerely, Samuel
